

Dear Mr. President,

My name is Albert Choe. I was travelling with Kim Sang-duk, also known as Tony Kim, when he was detained in the country of North Korea. The North Korean government investigated the case and found me guilty of exploiting their territory. I tried to tell the government officials I was innocent but they didn't believe me saying I did not have enough sufficient evidence. Upon the release of Tony Kim and the other two U.S. citizens, the North Korean government suggested that I reach out to you and give you a chance to prove your worthiness as president.

To get released, I was ordered to write a letter of demand for $50,000 U.S. dollars as a pardon on behalf of my accused crimes. I was also told to inform you that this is not about the monetary value, but was issued to act as a last chance to prove my innocence. If I could get back to the United States I could pay you back, as I have a savings account from funds received for doing research in the U.S.

The reason for my travel, along with Mr. Kim, was strictly for educational purposes. I was visiting the Pyongyang University of Science and Technology because I was doing a study session with Tony Kim on new ideas to make plants grow better. I was only there for simple research about plants. Mr. Kim and I have worked together for years conducting very similar research in several countries around the world.

The Democratic People's Republic of Korea leaders thought I was a spy. Their belief was that I was trying to steal research information that could develop new medications to further improve health. The North Korean government was paranoid thinking I along with Mr. Kim were spies for rival countries. However, this is not the case. A simple research of my prestigious educational career would prove otherwise. It would mean a lot to me if you did help me and it would let the public see how you are a thoughtful leader who puts his citizens first.

The benefits of helping me through this difficult time will be far reaching in your presidential career. As it will show that you are in fact the people's president, and you do value the voting population. It will also show your trust in the American people, as you see that I am being held without a justifiable reason.

Sincerely,

. Albert Choe

P.S. I have added recent newspaper articles that were published in the Korean-American Newsletter that feature my story and current situation. Please hurry, as I am not in very stable living conditions, and I am in the middle of a potential groundbreaking discovery in terms of medical science.

KOREAN - AMERICAN NEWS LETTER

President Donald Trump wants to invite North Korean leader Kim Jong Un to the White House if the June 12 nuclear summit in Singapore goes well.

President Trump greets American prisoners freed by North Korea

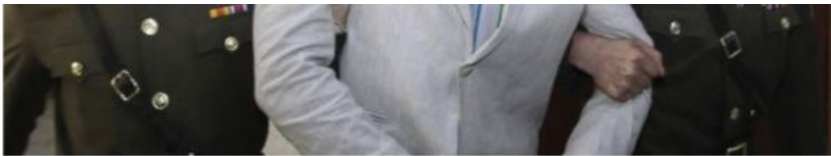

President Trump has called off a planned summit with North Korea, citing what he called "tremendous anger and open hostility".

Americans held in North Korea as prisoners

South Korea's president Moon Jae-in might join Trump-Kim summit.

The South Korean official has expressed interest in attending the summit stating that his attendance may help ease the tension between the two powerful leaders. Mr. Moon and Mr. Kim agreed to a summit meeting a few weeks ago where relations and peace leading ideas were heavily debated. Upon completion of that summit both leaders agreed Mr. Trump needs to have some serious discussions with the North Korean leader.

3 US citizens home...

The North Korean government recently released three US citizens to return home. However, there is still believed to be at least one more American detained from similar acts. The party that was conducting research along with Tony Kim has not been fully accounted for. The citizen still believed to be held by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea is Kim Yu-Choe, also known as Albert Choe. Albert is a highly educated individual, and his involvement in any crimes has yet to be released, and according to Choe's social media accounts, he was only visiting to study with Tony Kim at Pyongyang University.

PyeongChang Leftovers

Make sure you check out the pictures on page 4 to see just how quickly the Olympic paradise is changing to a maintenance nightmare.

